"Holding on to Inspiration - Plein Air"

A 5-Day Oil Painting Workshop - All Skill Levels

June 13-17, 2011 9am-4pm

How often have you been really inspired and motivated to paint a scene only to have that inspiration dissipate halfway through the effort? Painting outdoors is both exhilarating and daunting. In this plein air class, students will be empowered through seeing and thinking in terms of "the greater simplicity." Don will encourage more expression through less manipulation of the medium. Daily critiques, several instructor demonstrations, lectures, and review of the formal principals of design are integral to this class. The student will learn to proceed with confidence and un-abated enthusiasm from the outset, bringing their paintings to satisfactory completion.

This class will be conducted outdoors, on location, as much as weather permits. Nature is the best teacher. Nature is where the truth of light can be found and studied. So, when we go out to paint en plein air, we are making direct observations of nature and light.
