

Tools for Your Watercolor Toolbox

Jo Dunnick, Instructor

This watercolor workshop will give you tools to tackle watercolor, which may seem daunting to many people. The challenge for you will be to let go, get out of the way, not worry about the outcome, and let the paints and paper play together. We'll use different types of paper and techniques to create unique, fresh starts, one of which you will bring to a finished painting. All levels welcome. Only requirement: be ready to play and explore and enjoy how watercolors can make amazing images.

Retiring after 30 years as a Physical Education teacher, I began a second, unintended, career as a watercolor painter and teacher. I actually didn't know I could do it, but after learning some tools and techniques, I was surprised to discover my abilities. I fell in love with watercolors. This journey has been amazing.

"It is very rewarding having people moved by something I've put on paper, or having those who've taken the workshop surprise themselves by their own abilities to create fresh and unique images."
